Tertiary Website Linking

Do you know the difference between reciprocal and tertiary links to your website? It is a very small thing that can make a very big difference!

The "standard" for website links that developed soon after the internet became popularized was reciprocating links. This is the "you scratch my back and I'll scratch your's" approach to linking, and it was effective for a few years.

However, search engines are ever-changing (especially google) in order to "weed out" elements that "manipulate" the results in organic search engine results pages, thus reciprocal links were devalued years ago.

Question? How can you recover the "lost value" of the easiest way to gain inbound links for your website? Answer: use a tertiary linking program instead!
